Each arrangement is written for three percussionists, and it includes a basic rhythm track, a melody line, and a harmony line. The rhythm track can be played on any type of percussion instrument, such as a drum, tambourine, or shaker. The melody line can be played on a xylophone, glockenspiel, or other pitched percussion instrument. The harmony line can be played on a hand drum, tambourine, or other unpitched percussion instrument.

If you are new to playing percussion, I recommend starting with the first few arrangements in this collection. These arrangements are very simple and easy to learn. As you become more comfortable playing, you can move on to the more challenging arrangements.

I hope you enjoy playing these folk song percussion trio arrangements! If you have any questions, please feel free to leave a comment below.
